Hello Richard,

Got your email, thanks.

If we could arrange an in-studio discussion that would include someone from your department, we'd like plan that when your department will be presenting the current round of Pavillion water samples in mid to end of September. We haven't made any formal invitations as we are early in the planning stage, but would like to include an Encana spokesperson, someone from your department and a journalist who's been following the developments in Wyoming.

We understand EPA won't be in a position to interpret the findings to any great extend, but if someone could talk about the process and science that EPA has put into this study, that would serve the discussion well.

Look forward to your updates and bringing EPA to the table.
